At the beginning of the year, the student chooses to follow a track (1, 2 or 3). Although this guides the student's selection of courses within the MA programme Literature Today, it is also possible (to be approved by the programme-coordinator) to include elements from the other tracks if this is desirable and relevant for the student's individual profile.

For an annotation on the diploma that students have completed their language-specific profile in track 3 of the master programme, they have to complete at least 30 EC of language-specific components, of which 10 EC are to be attained in courses and 20 EC as a thesis. For the course-requirement, students have to follow electives in blocks 1 and 2 in the respective language. If a student does an internship in blocks 3/4 and if this internship fulfils the language-specific requirements (to be approved in advance by the internship-team and the programme coordinator), the internship can also count as a language-specific component. Regardless, students have to complete at least one language-elective to receive the annotation on the diploma that students have completed their language-specific profile in track 3 of the master programme. The master thesis is written in the respective language. At least one of the supervisors of the master thesis is a qualified examiner of the respective language department, to ensure the quality and proficiency of language use.

Further information about the language-specific components of the programme is available in the course descriptions and on the website.

'MasterLanguage'

As part of the programme Literature Today, students can follow courses from the national 'MasterLanguage' (MaLa) programme, as shown in the course overview. To have other Masterlanguage-courses count towards the degree, the student has to receive permission in advance from the board of examiners.

Students can substitute skills courses or the internship for a Masterlanguage-course. This after consultation with the programme coordinator and the board of examiners.

Students who started in the academic years 2018-2019 or 2019-2020 need to complete the education programme as described in the EER-attachment 2018-2019 or 2019-2020, respectively. If certain components of the programme are not offered in the current academic year 2020-2021, the following transitional provisions apply.

It is possible to make the transition from the exam programme of an earlier cohort to the programme of the current academic year (2020-2021). If the student chooses to do so, he/she has to comply to all regulations of the exam programme of the current academic year and has to request approval from the Board of Examiners. Please contact your study advisor if you are considering to do this.

No transitional provisions are included for students who started before 2018-2019. These students need to consult the Board of Examiners if they have questions about their study programme.
