Restrictions:
One year (60 ECTS) in a research master's program in the field of Methodology and Statistics

Description:
Methodology and statistics are not only applied in social science research, it is also a research area in its own right with its own research questions and methods to answer these questions.
The student will answer a methodological or statistical research question, such as "what is the optimal number and spacing of measurement occasions in longitudinal research" or "what are means to shorten questionnaires". The results are reported in a thesis and oral presentation.
By May 2017 a list of project topics becomes available.
