Description:

Building on one hand on a field of research long developed in the Department of Modern Languages and on the other on the museological interests and activities central to the History of Art/Contemporary art section of the Beni Culturali Department, the project aims at exploring the multiple and multilayered interactions between texts (narrative, dramatic, poetic) and the museum and collection cultures. The thriving Milanese scene of museums - old, rejuvenated, brand-new, future – offers an ideal framework for such an investigation. The reasearch goup plans to divide activities into three main interacting phases: Historical approach in the classroom/ Reading and analysis laboratories/Guided visits to the most significant museums in town.
